AT THE AUDITORIUM. John Barrymore in The Dictator and Big Tabloid Show Today.

The Irish and Scotch Tabloid Play ers, who have been attracting such wide attention during their stay at the Auditorium, will be seen today for the last time in the comedy Scotch piece, McGregor's Anniversary Day, as tomorrow they will make a complete change and present a very funny Irish farce entitled Shaun's Farewell, which the week. In McGregor's Anniversary Day, which will be the bill for today, a very pleasing Scotch song and dance a very pleasing scotch song and delice review will be seen in which many popular Scotch airs will be sung by Jim Dorhety in his usual sweet tenor voice, Miss Marie Agnese and Miss O'Hearn. Scottish dances will be introduced and original stories and jokes will be heard. The Tabloid Players have a show that is different from the others and very neat and clean in every respect, and all who have seen it speak very highly of it.

The Paramount picture for Wednes-day and Thursday will be The Dictator with John Barrymore in the leading role, supported by Charlotte Ives. The Dictator, by Richard Harding Davis, affords John Barrymore, the inimitable comedian, and those immediately concerned with him in the projection of fun, opulent opportunities to tickle the risibles of a large and thoroughly appreciative audience. He is as dry in his methods as he was in The Man From Mexico, and his other sensational comedy success, Are You a Mason? yet his system of provoking laughter in this subject is somewhat different, too, due to the melodramatic requirements of the story. The Dictator is termed a melodramatic comedy, and the fun of the plot emanates from the apparently serious situations in which the star finds himself. For this reason, only a Barrymore, with his knowledge of dra-matic principles, could adequately in-terpret the role so that the humor is eserved.

All the subtleties of his art are brought to bear upon the part he portrays, and suggestion with him simply means fulfillment. Mr. Barrymore has probably never had a role, either on the stage or screen, which equipped him with better opportunities. The photoplay can be said to be full of "Barrymoreisms." As Brooke Travers, who has perforce left New York with his valet on a southbound steamer af-ter a questionable night adventure with a cabman, the star is put through a series of deliciously amusing embarrassments, the sort most happily suited to his personality, emerging first as Uncle Sam's consul at Porto Banos, and finally as its dictator. For the author, it might be said that Richard Harding Davis treats South Americans and their chief pastime, which is revolutions, in a highly comic manner, and the photoplay on the whole is one of the most diverting subjects produced on the screen in some time.

Her Great Match, Five Part Feature, With Gale Kane, Today and Tomorrow-Keith Vaudeville.

that celebrated actress, Gale Kane, supported by an all-tar cast of film

The picture begins with Prince Adolph of Syravia, who while on a pleasure trip through America meets Jo Sheldon, a charming American girl. Some time later, at a charity fete, they again meet and rapidly fall in love. The king, on learning of his son's departure, sends one of his men to America to persuade him to return and stop the marriage. The servant, arriving there ahead of the prince, secures a position in Mr. Sheldon's factory. Jo is seriously injured in an accident, caused by the king's servant, who tries to make a getaway. but is caught and severely punished. The story ends happily, with Jo's complete recovery and her marriage with the prince. The vaudeville attraction is the Capital City Trio, a clever singing and comedy act that is making a big hit with the patrons of this theatre. The remainder of the bill includes a tworeel Pathe comedy called Max and His Mother-in-Law, by the Pathe

COLONIAL THEATRE.

Comus Players, With Harriet Moran, Mina Graham and Kittie Deem.

With three such sweet and powerful singers, it is no wonder the Comus Players at the Colonial theatre this week are the talk of the town. It is rare indeed that three such voices, accompanied by charming personalities, grace any programme at the same time, but they are here today in a well defined programme, a programme that is calculated to meet the tastes of a diversified and exacting public. Miss Harriet G. Moran, of the famous Italian International Sextette, whose voice is one of the strongest and sweetest ever heard at the Colonial, renders At the Close of a Perfect Day a magnification. the Close of a Perfect Day, a magnifi-cent musical creation by Carrie Jacobs-Bond. This is a song whose wonderful pathos reaches the hearts of the most blase concertgoer, as well as the heart of the tiniest lad in the as the heart of the tiniest lad in the front row of the theatre chairs. Tom Whalen, another prime favorite, appears in a delightful sketch entitled Behind the Scenes. Miss Moran again appears in this number, doing some clever pantomime work. Miss Mina Graham, the dainty little ingenue of the cast, sings in a very spirited manner When I Marry You as a single turn. Another sprightly favorite on the versatile cast is Miss Kittle Deem, whose splendid singing voice is utilized to splendid advantage in Traumerel, an especially pleasing number. Mr. Whalen recites Sam Bernard's stirring poem, The False Friend, and the whole show closes with a hilarious baseball chorus in which a burlesque game is chorus in which a burlesque game is played. No show tonight, Y. M. C. A.

PAT HIM ON THE BACK.

f your friend has sung a song.
That has filled your heart with cheer has righted some sore wrong.
At the cost of many a tear—
Pat him on the back. If he falters in the race
For the nobler things of life,
Look with pity on his case,
Help him in his manly strife—
Pat him on the back.

If he has been led astray,
Into ugly paths of shame,
Win him to the better way,
Use no bitter words of blamePat him on the back.

If in far off country be
Has been eating husks with swine
Make him a jubilee.
When his sins he shall resign—
Pat him on the back.
